Sharing Life by Rob Ross:

I watched two Meadowlarks mate this morning,
Eastern ones, in that dead ash tree.
No big deal, they seemed to say to each other,
both looking off in the middle distance.

Afterward, she preened for a bit, as he reset himself in a branch slightly above. A short while later he flew off, and she stayed,
hunkered a bit in the wind, then stretched.

Look around you. This is your life now,
filled with life, and a gift for us all,
who are able to share in it.

Feel free to send a poem for the next newsletter. Email your poetry to Please join the Progressive Dems for the 2nd of our monthly book discussions which will be held the last Sunday of each month (except May due to Memorial Day) at 3 pm at Hive North. June 27th we will be discussing "This One Wild and Precious Life" by Sarah Wilson.

Many of us are living with the sense that things are not right with the world and are in a state of spiritual PTSD. We have retreated, morally and psychologically; we are experiencing a crisis of disconnection—from one another, from our true values, from joy, and from life as we feel we are meant to be living it. Sarah Wilson argues that this sense of despair and disconnection is ironically what unites us—that deep down, we are all feeling that same itch for a new way of living.

Share a glass of mead, light snacks and stimulating conversation! Each month books will be chosen that speak to the most important topics of our times. Bring along a friend or family member. Everyone is welcome.
